

Jens Nørve has a long history working with IT both in the public sector and in the private sector. His experience includes managing a social security office, ICT policy development in various ministries, director for ICT strategy in Telenor and Nordic Compliance Officer for IT in Telenor. After 7 years working in the private sector, Jens returned to the public sector to take part in the establishment of the recently established Agency for Public Management and eGovernment (DIFI). (DIFI) was established 1 January 2008, following a merger of the previous public agencies Statskonsult, Norway.no and the Norwegian eProcurement Secretariat. DIFI aims to strengthen the government's work in renewing the Norwegian public sector and improve the organisation and efficiency of government administration. Jens is currently focusing on issues related to digital interaction between state and local governments, including stimulating sharing, re-use and development of common components and solutions.