

Guidelines for funding of scientific articles publishing with Open Access

1. University of Agder's Open Access fund covers publication fees (APC – Article Processing Charges) for articles that were accepted for publishing in pure Open Access journals (journals that give free access to all articles and related content immediately upon publication).
2. Only the corresponding author (the author who is responsible for submission of the article and the correspondence with the publisher through the publishing process) may apply for funding. The corresponding author must be affiliated with University of Agder as an employee, a PhD candidate or a master's student. «University of Agder» must appear as the author's affiliation in the article.
3. Funding is granted only for publishing in pure Open Access journals. Funding is not granted for publishing in subscription-based journals with Hybrid Open Access option (allows authors to make individual articles Open Access by paying a fee).
4. The journal has to be registered in Directory of Open Access Journals (DOAJ) and approved as level 1 or level 2 publishing channel in Norwegian register for scientific journals, series and publishers.
5. Funding is granted only to peer-reviewed articles.
6. Researchers are encouraged to apply for funding after the manuscript is accepted for publication. The University Library controls the publishing channel as well as clarifies copyright. Use the application form to apply for support.
7. Funding is not granted for articles that have been submitted but not accepted, or for articles that have been already published.
8. Funding is not granted for additional costs (colour print, copy editing, additional illustrations/pages etc.).
9. Funding is not granted to articles that are results from externally financed projects with budgets for publishing of articles with Open Access. The exception is articles related to projects funded by the Research Council of Norway that covers by the UiA's Open Access fund.

10. The payment routines have to be followed.
11. Applications that meet the criteria are granted on a regular basis as long as funds are available.
12. The guidelines can be changed without notice, but without prejudice to the already granted approvals or refusals.
13. The University Library's decisions are final with no opportunity for appeal.
